PROGRESSIVES WILL FORM ORGANIZATION TO PROMOTE POLICY

Liberal Legislation In Congress Purpose Of Conference

WASHINGTON, March 10.—A permanent organization to battle for enactment of liberal legislation in future sessions of congress will be formed at the national conference of progressives, meeting here tomorrow and Thursday, it was announced today by its managers.

The group of senate insurgents, Republican and Democrat, who sponsored the conference, were enthusiastic over the prospects when 122 national prominent educators, economists, publicists, labor and farm leaders accepted their invitations. The conference, they said, would be devoted first to obtaining a cross-section of the national viewpoint toward progressive policies, and second, to lay the foundation for a national organization for enacting liberal legislation.

A preliminary list of the progressives of both parties, who accepted invitations to the conference, failed to include the names of either Franklin D. Roosevelt,

PLAN TO ATTEND

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Among Ohioans who will attend the national conference of progressives tomorrow and Thursday in Washington, are the following:

Miss Elizabeth J. Hauser of the League of Women Voters, Girard, O.; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; C. M. Harrison, of Cincinnati; Professor Herb A. Miller, of Ohio State University; A. F. Whitney, railroad trainman, Cleveland; Peter Witt, of Cleveland.

governor of New York, or Gifford Pinchot, governor of Pennsylvania. It was said Roosevelt declined on the ground he could not spare the time from his gubernatorial duties, while Pinchot was reported to have indicated he would attend at least one session of the conference.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Dr. Charles Beard, of New York, Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the industrial relations commission, Fred Brenckman, of the national Grange, and Bruce Bliven, of the National Headed the list of acceptance.

It was made clear by the senate insurgents the conference was expected to endorse a program of progressive policies before adjournment, although specific legislation might not be endorsed. Their purpose, according to Senator Norris (R) of Nebraska, conference chairman, will be to secure advice from the experts who will attend, which will help us formulate legislation in the future.

Norris said special committees of experts and legislators probably would be organized to "gather further information and draft legislative proposals in the future." This was but a tentative plan, he said, subject to revision by the conference.

"We want to hear what experts think of various policies and measures. We will hold a series of 'round table' discussions at which all those invited will be given an opportunity to advise us," said Norris.

Norris announced he would preside at a session devoted to the control of public utilities. He said Senator William E. Borah (R) of Idaho, proponent of the debenture plan of farm relief, would preside at a discussion of farm relief. He added that Senator La Follette (R) of Wisconsin, would handle an unemployment relief conference; Senator Costigan (D) of Colorado, a former tariff commissioner, would preside at tariff discussions and Senator Cutting (R) of New Mexico, a Harvard graduate, at a debate on representative government.

There will be five sessions, morning and afternoon sessions Thursday. This was as far as the managers planned, although developments at the conference may lead to additional sessions.

MAYOR WALKER OFF ON WESTERN VISIT

NEW YORK, March 10.—Mayor James J. Walker was on his way to California today for a month's vacation. The mayor left here yesterday. He was accompanied by C. W. Galloway, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, who loaned the mayor the private car. Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Blumenthal, and George Collins, his secretary.

Mayor Walker expected to spend most of his vacation at the winter home of Samuel Untermyer, at Palm Springs.

WILL DISCOUNTED

HUSBAND ARRESTED AFTER KILLING MAN TRAPPED WITH WIFE

Calls Police First And Then Surprises Illicit Tryst

WASHINGTON, Mar. 10.—Hurta Ira Dulaney, 37, made an unexpected visit to his apartment; creeping up the stairs in his stocking feet to prevent his wife from hearing him.

Today William Huff, 25, Hume Springs, Va., died from four bullet wounds in his body; Dulaney was held for a coroner's jury on a charge of murder. Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Dulaney, 25, the wife, was held at the house of detention while her four children were being cared for by relatives.

Before going home Dulaney telephoned the police a warning that "something might happen" and a policeman was sent to the house. The husband told him he believed a "burglar or somebody was in the house" and suggested the officers go up the back stairs while he went up the front in his stocking feet.

The policeman was in the rear of the apartment house when he heard the four shots and found Huff lying in the Dulaney apartment.

Mrs. Dulaney was on her knees holding his head and crying "Bill, Bill," the policeman said.

Two of the Dulaney's small children, Edward, 20 months, and George, five months, frightened by the pistol shots, were screaming. Their father looked on as if in a daze.

The husband told police he had warned Huff to keep away from his wife but had seen him enter his house when he passed it on his street car. He said he had been separated from his wife and went back to live with her only last week.

LONG BEACH, Cal., March 10.—Captain Ira C. Eaker, noted army pilot, hopped off from the municipal airport today at 2:13 a. m. (Pacific Coast time) for a 2,400-mile non-stop flight to New York City.

Before getting into his special plane Captain Eaker announced he was not trying to break the transcontinental record held by Captain Frank Hawks, but that the flight was one of a series of tests to determine the mobility of army air transports in sustained flight across the country.

The route he will follow will take him over Wichita, Kans., and Dayton, Ohio.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Capt. Frank Hawks, air speedster, hopped off from Curtiss Field at 7:16 a. m. today for Atlanta, Ga., which he plans to make his only stop on a trip to Houston, Tex.

UNREQUITED LOVE BLAMED FOR SUICIDE OF CLEVELAND GIRL

CLEVELAND, March 10.—The tragedy of unrequited love was reenacted today with the death of Miss Julia Porcello, 21, black-haired and pretty, who killed herself, police said, when she found her youthful romance shattered.

The love-despondent girl died in Huron Road Hospital from a bullet wound near the heart, which was self-inflicted, according to detectives, in the bathroom of the apartment where her erstwhile sweetheart, Robert Allen, an automobile salesman, resided.

Allen and Miss Ruth Medhurst,

23, successor of the dead girl's affections with Allen, were held at Central police station for questioning. The youth was placed in the hospital cell to regain his composure.

FORMER OHIO STATE SENATOR SLATED TO RUN FOR CONGRESS

Gerrymander Effort Intimates Plans Of Allen Aigler

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Former state senate floor leader Allan G. Aigler of Bellevue, was regarded as a certain candidate for congress in 1932 in state capital political circles here today.

Although the former senate president pro tem could not be reached for a statement, his friends here intimated that the attempt to oust Seneca County from the thirteenth congressional district and replace it with Lorain County was an effort to bolster that region for Aigler's candidacy.

That change in the thirteenth district was proposed in a recent meeting of the state senate gerrymandering committee which is attempting to redistrict the state before 1932 in hope of giving Ohio the two additional congressmen allowed it by the last census.

Former Senator Aigler, long a Republican leader, was not returned to the legislature this year as a result of his defeat by Senator William H. Herner (D) of Monroeville, whose principal platform was opposition to the Anti-Saloon League.

While Aigler was being prominently mentioned as a congressional candidate, Senator Charles J. Anderson (R) of Shelby, chairman of the gerrymandering committee, told International News Service that he will not be a candidate for the house of representatives at Washington next year. His statement was made in reply to rumors which indicated that he might run.

AWAITS SENTENCE FOR WIFE MURDER

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Judge Charles A. Leach today was expected to make known the fate of Paul Harmon, 45, charged with first degree murder of his wife. Harmon is said to have killed her with a brick last September 13. He has pleaded guilty to a general charge of homicide.

Defense Attorney Wilbur E. King Monday pictured his client as a homesick man and a victim of amnesia. Franklin County Prosecutor Daniel J. Hoskins derided the defense story of Harmon's actions and described the slaying as a cold blooded brutal murder and demanded death in the electric chair as the penalty.

Judge Leach is to decide whether the first degree murder charge will be sustained.

DOUBLE CEREMONY

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 10.—A double christening is expected to take place in the home of Harold Lloyd within ten days. ## RELIEF RUSHED TO EARTH QUAKE VICTIMS; BELIEVE 200 KILLED

BELGRADE, March 10.—Austrian relief forces hurried in the central Balkans today to alleviate the suffering of thousands rendered homeless by week end earthquakes, in which at least 200 lost their lives, and to prevent an outbreak of epidemic.

King Alexander of Yugoslavia ordered all soldiers whose homes are in the devastated areas to return at once to aid in reconstruction work. Yugoslavia was the worst hit of the three Balkan countries.

Twenty of the destroyed towns and villages are within its borders. The remaining fourteen severely damaged communities are located in Greece and Bulgaria.

Approximately 1,000 homes were leveled, with unofficial estimates placing the dead as high as 800. The injured reached into hundreds.

Panic-stricken inhabitants, sheltered in all sorts of makeshift accommodations in the midst of bitter cold, salvaged as much as possible from their tumbled homes. The Red Cross and army detachments fed them and cared for the injured.

A flood of contributions poured in to relief headquarters here in response to an appeal by King Alexander. He has set up headquarters at Nish to personally supervise relief measures.

DEATH IN CELL CAUSES PROBE

Learn Convict Was Fastened To Door

JOLIET, Ill., March 10.—An inquiry today was to open a triple investigation into the death of Joseph Coakley soon after he had been handcuffed to the door of his cell in the state penitentiary here during solitary confinement.

Inquiry which followed Coakley's death brought the admission from prison officials that it was a common practice in the penitentiary to handcuff prisoners to cell doors for long periods and in such a position that it was impossible for them to sit down.

Coakley had been chained with his hands above his head for eight hours Saturday.

The prisoner had recently suffered a severe attack of influenza, it was learned. He had been dead three hours when found huddled in two blankets on a rude bench. A blood clot in the heart was given as the cause of death following an autopsy.

It was indicated that the state government might assist in the investigation started by two prison welfare organizations.

PRISONER REVEALS WOUNDED BY BULLET

Ora Kelly, 25, fugitive from Wellston, O., captured by Xenia police early Monday after they surrounded a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad box car in which he was hiding, was wounded slightly in the left leg by the second of two shots fired after him by Patrolman Fred Jones when he attempted to escape by jumping from the car and darting under the train.

The second bullet grazed the calf of the leg, inflicting a flesh wound, but Kelly did not call attention of police to the wound until late Tuesday morning. Dr. F. M. Chambliss was summoned and the wound was dressed. The injury is not serious.

Kelly is wanted by Wellston police on an auto theft charge and is being held here pending arrival of authorities from that city.

Her daughter, Anna, 11, fearful of following her mother in the plunge, remained behind and later was found suffocated with her body charred.

Two other members of the family, the father, David, 50, and Ruth, 18, also took the leap. Both were seriously burned but will recover.

A spectacular rescue brought the remaining member, Milton, 15, to safety. The boy, afraid to

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ATTEMPTS TO CLEAR CLOGGED CALENDAR

Expects Early Recess Before Taking Up Taxation Plan

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Eyeing a promised vacation with schoolboy-like relish, the general assembly today jumped enthusiastically into a clogged and congested calendar with the express hope of clearing away odds and ends before Friday, April 3—the day it hopes to adjourn until it is recalled to take up separately the task of drafting a new taxation plan.

April 3—or April 10 at the latest—ought to be the natural expiration date of the present session, leaders in the two branches, willing to discuss the question openly for the first time this session, said today, indicating, it was believed, that they are determined to be here on routine matters, no more than a month longer.

Then, said Republican floor leader Earl R. Lewis, the St. Clairsville senator, almost in the same breath as he defied Democrats to carry out their "calendar committee" threats, should come a vacation of two weeks, or maybe three, after which the entire assembly ought to return, well refreshed, to consider the one important problem of the biennium.

Agreed on this policy, the business of the house and the senate for the remaining weeks seemed likely to center on the budget, the welfare institution and highway programs, the relief program, one or two investigations, and the passage of the most urgent bills.

All along the line today somebody was playing a "waiting game," preventing the immediate accomplishment of one of the impending tasks.

The senate was waiting for Governor George White to send in his welfare and highway programs. The senate finance committee was waiting for the house finance committee to send over its budget bill. The house was waiting for the senate to make up its mind about its investigations. And on both sides of the senate the leaders were waiting for the other leaders to do something about the proposed steering committee, which it was said, is needed to sift out the important bills and bury the others.

If both parties carry out their threats, the senate will have no calendar committee, and bills will have to be taken up at random under special order.

Senator Lewis today declared unequivocally that the Republicans will not yield to Democratic demands for equal representation on the calendar committee which they propose.

Formulating such a proposal "very irregular," in view of the Republican majority, he said his group will not consent. Since a two-thirds vote is necessary to create such a committee, and the Democratic assent is necessary to get a two-thirds vote, it seemed unlikely that such a committee will ever be named.

One important bill—the Reynolds unemployment insurance measure very likely will be disposed of in some way very soon, however, as a result of its sponsor's persistence.

Whiting related in detail the shooting, which he said Mrs. Gourley plotted. Sitting beside the accused woman during the testimony was her husband, the victim of the alleged shooting plot, who steadfastly maintains his belief in his wife's innocence.

The state opened its case yesterday against Mrs. George Gourley, charged with plotting the murder of George Gourley, last Thanksgiving eve.

Whiting related in detail the shooting, which he said Mrs. Gourley plotted. Sitting beside the accused woman during the testimony was her husband, the victim of the alleged shooting plot, who steadfastly maintains his belief in his wife's innocence.

Mrs. Gourley sent Whiting and her son, Harry, 19, on a pretended errand a half-hour before the shooting, Whiting testified. She gave them their instructions for carrying out the murder of her husband in a note, he alleged.

Whiting testified he followed her orders and found a shotgun on the back porch where Mrs. Gourley had placed it. He took his position in back of the porch, he declared. Gourley emerged from the house later to empty a bucket of ashes. At that instant some neighbors passed the house and Whiting testified he was afraid to shoot. Gourley returned safely to the house.

Mrs. Gourley came out, Whiting testified, and asked him if he had "lost his nerve," and then arranged for Gourley to come out again. She sent her husband for a pail of water and as he stooped over the well, Whiting took aim and fired, he told the court.

CHICAGO, Mar. 10.—A bright sun and temperatures well above the freezing mark had restored traffic in Chicago and the upper Mississippi valley states to normal today following the two-day March blizzard that brought a sixteen-inch fall of snow here.

More than 35,000 men were engaged here to clear street car tracks and streets and highways at an estimated cost of $1,000,000.

Melting snows have brought relief to the drought-stricken agricultural areas.

RESOLUTION AIMED AT HIGHWAY BUREAU PROPOSES INQUIRY

Governor Considers Education Bureau Complaints

COLUMBUS, O., March 10.—Investigation of two state departments—highway and education—were expected to be ordered here today.

A vote in the state senate this afternoon on the Lorchbach resolution appointing a committee to inquire into the conduct of the state highway department apparently had pledged this morning of almost a unanimous vote of adoption.

Meanwhile, Gov. George White had under consideration complaints of alleged czaristic practices of the state education department officials, which originated yesterday in Van Wert County.

The Lorchbach resolution seeks to set up a senate committee of six, including Senator David P. Lorchbach (D) of Cincinnati, the author, to investigate reports of transactions which are said to "have resulted in financial disadvantages and great loss to the state of Ohio."

Making no specific charges, the resolution says "it is reported that there has existed collusion among bidders," that "collusion has existed among certain officials and employees of the state of Ohio," and that "it is charged that the state highway department either had knowledge or should have had knowledge of such transactions."

It is reported, the resolution adds, that contracts have been let in excess of the market value, and that contractors have been coerced into completing certain contracts with the state highway department.

Besides Lorchbach, the investigating committee would be Senators Earl R. Lewis (R), of St. Clairsville, D. H. De Armond (D), of Hamilton, Walter G. Nickels (R), of New Philadelphia, James A. Reynolds (D), of Cleveland, and Frank E. Whittemore (R), of Akron.

Charges against the education department grew out of a complaint from Van Wert County that a rural school had its charter revoked because it was unable to meet requirements which could not be provided because of the failure of a bond issue.

Objecting that the present business depression has made it impossible to care for many costs that would be met ordinarily, persons in Van Wert County are said to have complained of the order.

Sensor William Greenlund (D), of Cleveland, hearing of the complaints, took the information to Governor White last night and suggested that he begin an inquiry.

Sensor T. E. Williams (D) of Celina, indicated that he probably will defend the department inasmuch as he only yesterday succeeded in getting director John L. Clifton to withdraw his order revoking the charter at Washington Twp. School in Mercer County, which also failed to get a bond issue for a new building approved. Charges will be aired at a protest meeting here Friday when opponents of centralized authority gather.

OHIO GRIPPED BY COLD SPELL

Chicago Sees Rise In Temperature

COLUMBUS, O., Mar. 10.—Snow squalls and blizzards continued generally throughout Ohio today with indications from the U. S. weather bureau that low temperatures will prevail for the next twenty-four to forty-eight hours.

Storms originating in the northwest and sweeping across the Rockies, Nebraska, Kansas, and Great Lakes states had lost much of their gust but little of their frigidity on reaching Ohio.

Air travel to the west and south was reported on a satisfactory schedule, but delays were experienced in some instances on the north and eastern routes, due to snow and low sky ceiling.

Northern and central Ohioans early today were greeted by a sharp drop in temperature. Snowfall was moderate and abating.

CHICAGO, Mar. 10.—A bright sun and temperatures well above the freezing mark had restored traffic in Chicago and the upper Mississippi valley states to normal today following the two-day March blizzard that brought a sixteen-inch fall of snow here.

More than 35,000 men were engaged here to clear street car tracks and streets and highways at an estimated cost of $1,000,000.

Melting snows have brought relief to the drought-stricken agricultural areas.

EVOLUTION OF A "DOFFER GIRL"

Miss Ida Rogers, Dean Of Xenia's Business Women, Proves Sex Not Transients

By ROSE HIGGINS MOWER
FIFTY-FIVE YEARS ago a little ten-year-old girl went to work for the Hooven and Allison Co. at its mill on W. Second St.

Such a tiny girl she was. But she could "doff" the huge bobbins wound with rope as the old fashioned spinner cast them forth, and replace them with fresh empty spools that travelled back over the route their companions had come.

Endlessly, all day long went the bobbins — full bobbins, empty bobbins. Little hands waiting for them, putting them on, taking them off.

Today, fine, intricate, beautifully constructed machinery hums in the modern factories of the Hooven and Allison Co. on Cincinnati Ave. Long ago disappeared the old style mechanism where the wee girl stood and "doffed" bobbins.

She is Miss Ida Rogers who, with a record of more than half a century of uninterrupted service for one firm, is the dean of Xenia's business women.

CHILD labor laws and compulsory education hampered one when Ida Rogers put away her dolls and trudged out to the Hooven and Allison mill to her first job and the $2.50 a week wage that was to help her widowed mother.

But Mrs. Rogers saw to it that her daughter's education did not end. Miss Laura Hicks taught a private night school, and there the little girl pored over her "three Rs" when the day's tasks were ended. This went on for several years.

Part of the $2.50 that was later increased to $3 went to pay the teacher.

Miss Rogers' father was Amos Rogers. He died when she was four years old, and her baby brother, Harry, nine months.

"I can just remember father lying in his casket," says Miss Rogers. That is the only memory she has of him. There had been six boys and six girls in the Rogers family.

Some of the older ones married and left the family home. But Mrs. Rogers needed all the help she could get from the children to make ends meet.

The late R. A. Kelly installed in the Hooven and Allison "rope walk," the first five machines for laying and finishing hemp in use here. He had built the machines in Delaware, O. The H. and A. was organized to manufacture hand made twine, and Mr. Kelly had to "sell" to the skeptical officials the idea that better and cheaper twine could be made by machinery.

They made him superintendent of the factory where his machinery was successful from the start, and the next spring, Ida Rogers joined the little corps of "doffer" girls. It wasn't long before the qualities that throughout the years have made her such a loyal and efficient employee were recognized. The little girl was made "boss" of the "doffers."

ON the second floor of the long brick factory building rope was still being made by hand. A boy was employed to "heave" the wheel of the spinner while a man walked slowly backward, dealing out the strands of hemp, jute, or sisal from bundles tied about his waist. That custom was the origin of the term "rope walk" still used by some persons to designate the twine mills. No twine, only hemp, or jute rope, was made by hand. Miss Rogers recalls that she wasn't a "doffer" very long until she was put to work learning to run the machines, standing tip toe often in order to see her work. The Hooven and Allison started a mill on the Cincinnati Pike, the present location of its factories, after buying out George Grodel, who had been operating a little hand system "rope walk," and later Miss Rogers was transferred there. For thirty years she was shipping clerk, but following a spell of pneumonia a year or so ago, she was, for the purpose of safeguarding her health, made assistant shipping clerk, a position which would not necessitate her leaving the department, and going out of doors.

She makes all the shipping tags and bills of lading for both the soft and hard fibre mills.

Miss Rogers has another record besides that of service. In all her years with the Hooven and Allison Co. she never met with an industrial accident. The only major accident in which she was ever involved occurred last January 15 when the automobile in which her brother-in-law, C. W. Ryan, was taking her to work, was struck by a cut of freight cars being shunted at the railroad crossing a short distance from the mills. The period she spent in recuperating from injuries suffered then represents one of the few times when a physical disability of any kind has kept her from work.

MISS Rogers makes her home with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ryan, 34 1-2 E. Second St. Her only brother, A. M. Rogers, a retired printer, lives at the Union Printers' Home, Denver, Col.

The name of Ida Rogers is bound closely with the romance of rope in Xenia. No story of the twine making industry that has been part and parcel of the life of the city could be written without including her. Into her life work she has put loyalty, love, devotion, brains and heart. In return she has the high regard of her employers and fellow employees. Almost diffident in her manner, she is hesitant at saying much about the important part she has taken in the building up of a big business.

An article in a recent issue of the Independent Woman, national business women's magazine, was titled, "Are We Transients in Business?" Ida Rogers, dean of Xenia business women, is an answer.

BEREANS ENTERTAINED ON MONDAY EVENING

Despite the inclement weather fifty members and friends of the Berean Bible Class of the First Reformed Church attended the monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. H. Earl Eavey, W. Third St., Monday evening. An interesting program was opened with a brief talk by Miss Harriet Shultz, Dayton, a former Y. W. C. A. secretary.

Mrs. Bussdicker, also of Dayton, told two missionary stories which proved to be actual experiences of members of her own family. She closed her talk with an original poem, "A Missionary Mother."

Mrs. Bussdicker has a son and a daughter who are now missionaries in Persia. Several special musical numbers were given by members of the class and later dainty refreshments, with a green and white color scheme predominating, were served. The assistant hostesses were Mrs. Roy Hull, Mrs. Albert Chidoweth, Mrs. Jesse Ary, Miss Mildred Shepard, Mrs. John G. Eavey and Mrs. Clarence Fisher.

COUNTY'S BONDED DEBT DECREASED AUDITOR REVEALS

Bonded indebtedness of Greene County in the general fund was reduced $86,884.76 during the year 1930 and now stands at $255,535, it is revealed by County Auditor James J. Curlett.

Bonds and notes outstanding against the road fund, ditches, bridges and culverts, Court House, County Children's Home and Infirmary, and the deficiency (relief) fund were liquidated during the year and no new bond issues were floated during the entire twelve-month period, it is pointed out.

The debt reductions are itemized as follows: roads—reduced from $235,300 to $180,800 by payment of $54,500; ditches—decreased from $10,713.61 to $7,275 by payment of $3,438.61; bridges and culverts—reduced from $32,406.15 to $25,960 by payment of $6,446.15; Court House—debt entirely wiped out by payment of final bond of $4,000; Children's Home and Infirmary—lowered from $19,000 to $16,700 by payment of $2,300; deficiency—reduced from $41,000 to $24,800 by payment of $16,200.

SCATTER DYNAMITE AS YOUTHFUL PRANK

ST. PAUL, March 10.—Tiptoeing gingerly down streets and alleys, prodding fearfully among shrubbery and brush, squads of St. Paul police and erstwhile youthful pranksters today combed the district around St. Catherine's College for nearly 100 sticks of dynamite which the boys admitted they had "scattered all over the neighborhood."

The dynamite was taken from a storehouse of the college, and the boys, unaware of its fearful potency, proceeded to hurl the sticks at walls and trees, rattle them along picket fences and toss them around carelessly without so much as a single successful boom. Even so, police say, there is enough dynamite lying around the district to alter considerably the topography of Randolph Heights.

Practically all of the dynamite remained unlocated when police and the young perpetrators of the prank, the oldest just 11, began their wary search for the missing explosives.

EXHUMING OF BODY CALLED CRUELTY BY YOUNG PROSECUTOR

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 10.—Cruelty said to have been shown by the defense in disintering Arlene Draves' body for a new post mortem examination was cited in closing arguments by the prosecution today in the trial of Virgil Kirkland, charged with the girl's murder. The review of the exhumation caused the collapse of Arlene's sister, Caroline.

"They would tear this poor little girl out of her grave, break in upon her sacred rest, to save this young ruffian from his just fate," declared Edmund Freund, the fiery and youthful assistant prosecutor. "He should be electrocuted, and you gentlemen know it."

On hearing this, Caroline collapsed and was carried prostrate from the courtroom by her brother, Edward. Another sister, Elsie, fell into the arms of a woman friend and hid her face from the court fans. Feminine spectators broke into sobs. The 20-year-old defendant was like a stoical Indian.

TALK ON RAILROADS BEFORE ROTARIANS IS HEARD TUESDAY

"Railroads—The Life of the Nation" was the subject of an address given Tuesday noon by Frank E. Strouse, Chicago, special representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad, when he appeared as guest speaker at the luncheon meeting of the Xenia Rotary Club at the Elks' Club.

"The progress of any nation depends upon its transportation facilities and the civilization of the American people is built on the excellence of the railroad lines," Strouse said. "We have in the United States 6 per cent of the world's land area and 7 per cent of the world population, but our 250,000 miles of main line railroad constitute not far from 40 per cent of the railroads of the world. In other words, we have seven to eight times as much railroad plant per capita or a square mile as the world's average," Strouse continued.

"The railroads serve the nation in a way that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Adequate transportation is the assurance of national prosperity and a guarantee of national unity. Fundamentally, its solution rests with the people, not with the railroads; the problem is moral and spiritual, not physical," Strouse concluded in his talk to Rotarians.

COUNTY WITHOUT AUDITOR FOR NEW TERM; APPOINTMENT DUE

Theoretically Greene County was without the services of an auditor Tuesday.

Appointive term of James J. Curlett, named to fill the unexpired elective short term of former County Auditor Paul H. Creswell, expired at midnight Monday and the Greene County Board of Commissioners inadvertently failed to officially re-appoint him to the office for the regular four-year term to which Creswell was also elected at the last November election.

Commissioners did not meet in regular session Tuesday but they are expected to re-appoint Curlett Wednesday. Meanwhile, Curlett is technically "out of office," although it is considered probable he could continue to serve indefinitely without reappointment until his successor is duly elected at the November, 1932 election.

Poems that Live

"AT THE MID HOUR OF NIGHT"

AT the mid hour of night, when stars are weeping, I fly To the lone vale we loved, when life shone warm in thine eye; And I think oft, if spirits can steal from the regions of air To revisit past scenes of delight, thou wilt come to me there, And tell me our love is remembered even in the sky.

Then I sing the wild song 'twas once such rapture to hear, When our voices comingling breathed like one on the ear; And, as Echo far off through the vale my sad orison rolls, I think, O my love! 'tis thy voice from the Kingdom of souls

Faintly answering still the notes that once were so dear. —Thomas Moore (1779-1825)

SOLDIER'S PASSING

The sudden death of Lieutenant-General Edgar Jadwin, in Panama City, should provoke very sincere regret all over the nation, for his career as a soldier was exceptionally distinguished and extraordinarily useful to the republic.

Entering the military service as an engineer, the future general first demonstrated his capacity and ability back in 1890 and 1891, while in charge of an enlargement of Ellis Island in New York Harbor. Later he did river, harbor and fortification work at Wilmington. He served with distinction in Cuba, and from 1902, for a period of five years, he was in charge of river and harbor fortification work along the Pacific coast. Later he directed the building of a famous sea wall at Galveston. For four years he was at Panama and, among other things, planned and built the west breakwater at Colon and excavated the sea level canal from the Atlantic to Gatun.

When America went into the World War, Jadwin was a lieutenant-colonel. He came out a general, with the distinguished service medal, the British order of the Companion of the Bath, and the French Legion of Honor. Afterward he did fortification work on both coasts, and finally gave the government the Jadwin plan for Mississippi flood control which the United States is now developing for the protection of valley dwellers.

That is a small part of the achievement of General Jadwin while in the active service of his nation. He was retired in August, 1929, as a result of the operation of the age limit rule, but did not quit his pursuit of his life work. When he died he was a member of a committee that is undertaking to determine whether a Nicaraguan canal ought to be built, or whether the Panama canal can take care of inter-oceanic commerce if it is fitted out with a new set of locks.

A big lesson in the life of General Jadwin is the proof it provides that the career of a soldier may be as useful in time of peace as in time of war, and may be made a big, constructive asset to society and civilization.

SAVING TREATY

The Franco-Italian naval accord cannot fail to have profound effects, which will touch even the interests of this country. One thing it will do is to save the London treaty and possibly enlarge it by the adherence of both Italy and France. A naval race between those two countries might easily have piled up an aggregate tonnage that would have justified Great Britain in availing herself of the escape clause of the London agreement. As soon as she did that, Japan and the United States would have been entitled similarly to exceed their treaty quotas. The lid would have been off.

The possibility of that happening was what induced Arthur Henderson, secretary of state for foreign affairs in Mr. MacDonald's government, to lend his good offices to the task of bringing Italy and France together. Just what arguments he used are not known. Apparently he induced them to measure their fleets with Great Britain instead of with each other, an ingenious device for removing "national honor" or fear from the discussion; and when that was accomplished it was easier to get Paris and Rome to talk more reasonably and abate somewhat their "irreducible minimums."

A better feeling between the French and Italian nations should be an early fruit of this new understanding. The consequences of this feeling will be helpful to the disarmament conference when it meets. Another potential source of conflict in Europe has been removed. With Germany's safe and sane parties in the ascendancy, Signor Mussolini may now declaim and Adolf Hitler rattle his tin sword, without throwing the world into a convulsion of war fear. The outlook for continued peace in Europe has not been brighter for many a day.

PRIVATE INCOMES

Did you ever wish you had a Private Income?

Ever envy other people who have money of their own and seem beyond the money worries that trouble your life? Ever do that, and wonder whether you, too, will ever have a Private Income?

Well, you do possess a Private Income, even though you can't collect it in money and can't buy groceries with it. Everybody who has lived a few years on this earth has a Private Income of his own, and it can't be taken away from him as long as he treasures it and knows its value.

A man may be a failure in the eyes of the world, but if his family loves him and respects him for the qualities he shows to them, he has a Private Income.

WHAT YOURS MAY BE

A teacher may earn very little, but if she looks upon her profession as an opportunity to make fine men and women out of little boys and girls, no rich man has an income greater than hers.

A craftsman may be unappreciated by the inconsiderate crowd, and his work may be ignored. But if he loves his job and puts his dreams and his heart into it, he draws an income from it that is no part of his pay check.

The Farmer in his fields, the Astronomer in his observatory, the Captain on the bridge of his ship, the Business Man in his office—all these have private incomes on which the government may collect no tax. The wife, the mother, the father, the child, the dreamer, the doer and the thinker all pay daily into some private account that can never be exhausted.

PAYS IN TIME OF TROUBLE

Behind the daily lives we live, behind the irritations and the defeats, is that Private Income that saves men from bankruptcy of the spirit. Men and women mean that income when they speak of their Self-Respect, when they refer to expenditures of the spirit no wise human being can afford.

And if you have such a Private Income on which you draw in time of trouble, no other kind that other men possess can ever seem important.

THE QUESTION BOX

—Central Press Wash. Bureau—

Answers to questions on information and fact can be obtained by writing to Central Press Bureau, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O., and enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope. No answers will be given to marital, medical or legal questions, nor will the estimated value of old coins be given.

From what poem is the line "Into each life some rain must fall," and who is the author?

The line "Into each life some rain must fall" is from Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's "An April Day."

Baseball

What team holds the National league record for hits made in one season, and how many? What catcher holds the American league record for put outs made in one season, and how many?

Philadelphia holds the National league record for hits made in one season (1930), the number of hits being 1,783. Ossie Schreckengost of the Philadelphia Athletics, holds the American league record for put outs made in one season (1905), the number being 785.

Quotation

Where is the quotation, "God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" found?

Lawrence Stern is generally credited with this quotation, although it is not original with him. It appears in his "Sentimental Journey," published in 1782. It also appears in Henri Etienne's "Le Livre de Proverbes Epigrammatiques" (1857, reprint of 1640) and is quoted there as coming from an older collection. George Herbert uses a variation of this quotation in "Jacula Prudentum" (1640). "To a close shorn sheep, God gives wind by measure." Sheep is more likely the word used in the original, since lambs are not shorn.

Birth Stone

What is the birth stone for March?

Bloodstone.

Shinplasters

What were shinplasters? Shinplaster was a name given to the notes of small denominations ranging from 3 cents to 50 cents, issued by private individuals during the financial panic which prevailed in the United States in 1837 and 1838. The term was also applied to the scrip which circulated among the people shortly after the outbreak of the Civil War. All the smaller coins had disappeared from circulation; for that reason it was necessary to resort to postage stamps for currency.

Stars and Stripes

When and where was the American flag first raised?

On January 1, 1776, at Cambridge, Mass., George Washington displayed a flag consisting of 13 stripes of red and white, with the British union jack in a blue canton. The place of the stars, the stripes being considered emblematic of the union of the 13 colonies against British oppression. No official action was taken with regard to a national flag until June 14, 1777, when the Continental Congress passed a resolution, "That the flag of the thirteen United States be thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be thirteen stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." Paul Jones claimed to have been the first to raise the new flag over a naval vessel, and it seems that the first use of the Stars and Stripes on land was at Fort Stanwix, on the site of the present Rome, N. Y., where a hastily improvised flag was raised on August 3, 1777.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

NEW YORK.—George Peck, the Sage of Gramercy packed his bag one day about a year ago and hied him to Havana. He had engaged in debate with The Fairer of Her Sex, lost the argument and gone to Cuba to rejuvenate his morale.

A week after reaching Havana he slipped one evening, crossing the Plaza, fell heavily to the soil of Cuba and sprained his gamsel joint.

Next day he cabled The Fairer of Her Sex:

"Am healing slowly as possible." And received the following reply: "Don't come home. All is forgiven."

BIRTH OF A "RIOT"

Prof. Teddy Metz, author of "A Hot Time in The Old Town Tonight," stopped in at the Astor the other night where The Newspaper Club's Old Times' Nights was under way.

I wrote a 'Hot Time' fifty years ago," said Metz, who is now eighty-six and doesn't look it.

"They were having a little affair in a place called 'Old Town,' outside New Orleans. I wrote the song for that occasion. I was originally entitled 'There'll Be a Hot Time in Old Town Tonight.'"

It struck the popular fancy. The word 'time' was inserted before 'Old Town' and after awhile the tune became associated all over the country with illicit gaiety. It achieved some degree of dignity, however, when Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders adopted it. Since then—well, you know the rest.

"Nevertheless, I'm ashamed of having written it. I can't under-

CHEWING GUM TACTICS EMPLOYED SUCCESSFULLY BY BIG BILL THOMPSON

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON, March 7. — "Politics and chewing gum," philosophized Congressman Sol Bloom, "are similar."

"That is to say," explained the representative from the Nineteenth New York district, "in soliciting votes, as in selling gum, one's appeal shouldn't be too highbrow."

"Vending gum," continued the Manhattan islander, "if profitable, provided it can be vended in sufficient quantities. More money has been made out of gum than out of all the different kinds of fancy candies put together."

"Five-cent cigars, too, are the big revenue producers; not the 25-cent brands, or three for half a dollar. There's millions in a good nickel drink, once popularized; champagne never piled up any huge fortunes."

"Yet there's this to be said," admitted the New Yorker, "for expensive confectionery, tobacco and liquid refreshments: 'There IS a market for them. It's restricted, but it does exist. It's adequate to afford a living to the producer who, for one reason or another, chooses to specialize in it.'"

"This isn't true of votes."

"Votes are all the same, and each citizen has only one of them."

"Consequently," said the congressman, "an appeal for votes must be a litney appeal, just like a chewing gum salesman's appeal for business."

"A chewing gum salesman, by addressing the intelligentsia, might possibly catch the patronage of a few intellectuals, but probably not many; anyway, there are not enough of them to chew much gum, if they ALL chewed it."

"Meantime, what about the remainder of his trade? Why, he simply wouldn't be getting any."

IT WAS William Hale Thompson's fight for continuation in the Chicago mayoralty that Congressman Bloom was discussing.

As a professional showman, turned politician, the Manhattanite watched "Big Bill's" politico-circus methods with intense interest throughout the Windy City executive's successful Republican nomination contest. He is equally absorbed now in observing developments in his re-election campaign against Anton Cermak, the Democratic can-stand, looking back, how I ever came to do it. I am convinced that jazz will soon disappear and that good music will come into its own."

UNSUNG NEW YORKER Ignatz, of Eleventh Avenue, has the distinction of being the only loose goat among New York's Seven Millions.

For the last three years he has been living the life of Reilly and any sunny day may be seen meandering with almost insolent nonchalance on either side of the avenue, from 34th to 42nd Street.

Ignatz used to have a job with a packing company. His work was leading sheep to slaughter. Somewhere along the road he lost a horn; the fugacious fangs have not dealt kindly with his hide and his eyes are divergent—that is, one of them looks forward toward next Spring, while the other gazes dreamily back in the general direction of last Christmas.

Last Summer, Ignatz was arrested for roaming the streets without a license. After languishing several days in jail he was released. His all-pervading presence coupled with his pronounced and peculiar appetite was too much for the Police Department.

dislike. Sol, himself, is a Democrat, but this, he thinks, promises to be too good a performance for partisan prejudice.

"BIG BILL" was in Washington a few days ago, in his capacity as president of the Waterway and Flood Control association of the Mississippi valley, to consult with Chairman Frank R. Reid of the house of representatives' flood control committee, on the eve of congressional adjournment, relative to Chicago's prospects of a steamship connection with the Gulf of Mexico in the near future.

Sol gave him a cordial hand during his short stay in the capital.

He also studied the visitor attentively and seemed favorably impressed by him.

"OF COURSE," commented the New Yorker, "Bill is at an advantage in being already in office."

"His enemies can howl all they please, but Chicagoans evidently think they might do worse or he wouldn't have had such a primary majority. Unless an administration is almost incredibly terrible, the voters usually take that view. They believe that at least they know the worst of what they actually have got, because they've experienced it. If they try something new, they have no idea HOW bad that may be."

"The average voter also generally votes for the candidate whose name he's most familiar with."

"CHICAGOANS naturally," said Sol, "know who 'Big Bill' Thompson is, because he's their mayor and has been advertised."

"Hence all he has to do is to beat a drum (which is all that his department does) and when people ask, 'What's that?' and the answer is, 'That's Big Bill' running for mayor again, most of the voters say, 'Oh, is that so? Well, we must get out and vote for him.'"

"But his antagonist has to SAY something, which is a great handicap."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

—By MRS. MARY MORTON—

MENU HINT Eggs a la King Baked Potatoes Sunshine Salad Buttered Brussels Sprouts Cake with Ornamental Frosting

Here is a new Lenten dish. For variation arrange the eggs and sauce in a baking dish, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and grated cheese and bake ten minutes.

Today's Minutes

Eggs a la King.—For six eggs, stir together over the fire three tablespoons of butter and three of flour, when bubbling add two cups of rich milk and cook over hot water to a smooth sauce. Then add one green pepper which has been cut in one-fourth inch pieces and allowed to stand ten minutes in boiling water, and one pimento also cut in small pieces. Simmer over hot water without stirring five to seven minutes, then add the eggs quartered, and if desired, half a cup of canned mushrooms. Season with salt, pepper and paprika and serve on freshly made toast points. Garnish with parsley and serve hot.

Ornamental Icing.—One unbeaten egg white, and one-half cup confectioner's sugar, two tablespoons cold water, two drops flavoring, two tablespoons confectioner's sugar. Place the egg white and one and one-half cups sugar in a bowl and beat thoroughly. Add the water and mix. Cook over a low flame for about two minutes, until the icing softens somewhat, then remove at once from the fire and stir in the two tablespoons sugar. Keep covered with a damp cloth so it will not dry out.

Corned Beef and Cabbage.—For corned beef select a piece of the rump and some of the round. This gives a certain amount of fat which helps to flavor the meat.

If the corned beef is very salty it should be soaked for a few hours, two or three, in cold, clear water. Ask your butcher if it should be soaked when buying it. Then remove from this water, place in a deep kettle and cover with cool water. Bring slowly to a boil and turn the fire down, so the meat only simmers. Cook until tender, from two to four hours, depending on the amount of meat cooked. Choose a firm head of cabbage, and cut in eighth so each piece has a little of the core to hold it together. About 10 minutes before serving time drop the cabbage in the kettle around the corned beef. Do not cook over 10 minutes, or the cabbage will become strong and stringy. Cabbage should be cooked quickly for a few minutes to keep it tender.

Health Gained By Correct Diet

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.—

I touched on this subject a week or two ago, but there has just come to notice a report that is too interesting to allow to pass by. At the risk of repetition, then, I shall describe the work of the Mellanbys, husband and wife, in England.

Perhaps the best way to introduce the subject is by quoting Professor Mellanby's own words: "It is now possible in animals to produce a degree of perfection or imperfection of teeth by different diets given during the period of dental development."

Isn't that an astounding fact? You can take one litter of animals, and no matter how healthy they are otherwise you can make them have bad teeth by giving them a certain diet. While another litter nearby, in the same climate and environmental conditions, is made to have sound teeth simply from another diet.

"Substances tending to produce perfectly calcified, bright, shiny and evenly arranged teeth include milk, egg yolk, cod liver oil, or indeed any substances rich in vitamin D, while cereals in the absence of sufficient vitamin D produce defective calcified, dull and discolored, unevenly arranged teeth."

Teeth, of course, require calcium which they get in milk. Hence the value of milk in the diet. Apparently they also require vitamin D and other vitamins found in egg yolk.

Dental decay is very common in England, and studies such as the Mellanbys performed are for that reason particularly valuable. They found, for instance, that in 1500 English school children 95 per cent had defective structure of the back molars, and that 85 per cent of these had decay. But the encouraging fact is that on diet alone much of this could be remedied. Not only prevented, mind you, but remedied after it had occurred.

For instance, using animal experiments, an attempt was made to find out the damage done by attrition and injury of the teeth. When artificial attrition was performed on a dog's teeth by rubbing them with a file, it was found that the teeth react by producing in the dentine adjacent to the dental pulp, some new secondary dentine. It was found that the production of this secondary dentine was controllable by the same dietetic means as controlled the primary dental structure.

So we may conclude that not only will proper diet prevent dental decay, but will actually help to stop it after it has begun.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

F. H. S., Kansas: "A child had an attack of infantile paralysis six weeks ago. She has recovered except that she drags her foot as she walks. Should she stay off her feet as much as possible, or exercise and massage the foot?"

Answer: Exercise is recommended for infantile paralysis cases after the acute stage of invasion is passed. It helps to restore the full amount of motion of which the paralyzed muscles are to become capable. Walking on a badly crippled foot may possibly cause deformities. The whole question is an individual one which should be left to the doctor in charge.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cent coin for each and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth Street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining Weight," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Lee Tells Boy To Win Girls

—By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE—

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I am sweet 17, real good looking, and always wear nice clothes. Not stuck up and have a little money most of the time."

"I don't drink, smoke and hardly ever curse, especially in the presence of girls. I think I am a little too good for this generation, that's what one girl said."

"I can get plenty of good looking girls, but I can't keep them. I court those from 15 to 17 years of age. I wonder if you can give me a little advice on how to get when I go to see my girl friends."

"DISGUSTED." I am afraid I can't tell exactly without seeing you in action. Disgusted. Do you, by any chance, talk about yourself all the time? Try to impress them with your virtues. Give them the impression that you think more of yourself than of them, and that they are lucky to have you give them the breaks by dating with them?

If you don't do any of those things which girls detest, are you a better person? A boy may have nice clothes, but if his collar and tie are not neat and his other clothes immaculate, if his hair is always in disorder, and his air generally disheveled, he doesn't go over so big.

Girls usually fall for boys who make them feel that they are charming. Be interested in the girl you are calling on, not in yourself. Maybe she has a secret sorrow which you can comfort. If you take her to a show ask her which show she wants to go to, instead of taking her to the one you want to see. If you find her in low spirits see that she feels better before you leave. If she feels gay play up to her. And, above all, tell her your woes and let her comfort you. Nothing appeals to a nice girl quite so much as to feel that she is a boy's confidante. Try these hints out and let me know how you come out.

MACK: It may be that the young lady is afraid of showing how much she likes you because your attentions are irregular. Why not ask her when you next take her out, when you may see her again?

You see, many men like to take a girl out but have no serious intentions, and if a girl shows too plainly that she likes them they shy away, for fear they may get what they call "hooked." Hence, it makes girls cautious. I think if you show the girl very plainly that you like her and mean business, she will feel freer to show her own feelings.

Of course it is barely possible that she doesn't care as much for you as you do for her, but, even so, it would be best for you to know how you stand, wouldn't it?

"DEAR MADAM: Will you please tell me whether it is proper for children to sit at a table with their elders, while others have to wait. In the particular case in mind it was not a children's party."

"A READER." If the occasion you speak of was a party, the children would more properly be served at a separate table set for them. This would permit all to be served at the same time.

WAITING: This is not a matrimonial matter. Waiting. I am afraid I'll not be of any help to you in finding a congenial mate. Better drop the boys if you're tired of them, and wait awhile until you meet someone who fills the bill.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES Enemas Irish. It is indeed harmful to make a practice of taking enemas every day. Evacuation should be a natural function. Attention to diet, and corrective exercises, will aid in remedying constipation.

Curly and Browne: Under the age of 16, exercises will help to correct bow-legs. After that age, an operation is usually necessary. You might consult an orthopedist about your legs. Keep at those abdomen exercises, and you'll get results.

Wrinkles Annabella Lee: The sensitive skin under your eyes has apparently become wrinkled. Lanolin is primarily a skin food, and is used to help dim lines and wrinkles. Apply it generously to the wrinkled area nightly before retiring.

Editor's Note: While it is impossible for Miss Glad to answer beauty questions by mail, she will be happy to send you her pamphlet on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" if you will write her, enclosing this paper, enclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope, and 10 cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling. For the articles on "Care of the Hands and Nails," and "Care of the Feet and Legs," 2 cents in coin for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope are required. Personal questions on beauty will not be answered through Miss Glad's daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

Xenia Central High may be congratulated upon surviving the sectional Southwestern Class A basketball tournament at Dayton last week-end, but the worst is yet to come.

In the district tourney at Dayton Friday and Saturday this week, bringing together the four representatives from the southern half and the four survivors of the northern half of the district, the buccaneers will be the underdogs, a realization which may, however, enable them to score an upset.

The fact that Cincinnati Hughes, Middletown, Hamilton Public and Roger Beason survived the Cincinnati sectional tourney is a tribute to the accurate seeding which prevailed for the competition in the southern half of the district. As a rule actual results do not always agree with arbitrary classifications based on form, but it is generally conceded the Cincinnati section is sending its four strongest teams to the district finale.

Each of these four teams, on form, should be able to eliminate the Xenia cagers, but the buccaneers may spring a surprise. Remember that Sidney beat Dayton Steele.

Ross Twp. High, Class B champion of Greene County, which will also represent this section in Class B district finals at Dayton this week-end, should make a creditable showing, despite its 20 to 14 defeat by Enon in the sectional finals at Springfield. Enon, Clark County champion, it must be remembered, had played most of its games during the regular season on the Wittenberg College floor, and the strange court placed Ross basketballers at a certain disadvantage.

Herbert Cummings, slightly-built Ross Twp. High School youth, who won the Greene County free throw championship and then emerged the winner in the sectional free shooting contest at Springfield Saturday, is not even a member of the Ross High basketball squad. Coach A. F. Roush tells us, Herbert is only a freshman but he displayed such an uncanny ability to shoot fous in practice this season that Roush permitted him to represent the school in the free throw contest held in conjunction with the county tourney. The youth had been more or less under the weather last week but he sank twenty-five out of thirty shots to cop the sectional title at Springfield and he will compete in the district finals at Dayton this week. Ordinarily he can average twenty-seven or twenty-eight out of thirty throws from the seventeen-foot mark, Roush says.

We have compiled a list of the pet hobbies of a number of tired business men of Xenia. Here is the list:

Tired Business Man.	Hobby.
Mart Schmidt	Fishing
Doc Kester	Fishing
Morris Sharp	Fishing
Ommer Tate	Fishing
Howard Donley	Fishing
George Lambert	Fishing
Harry Lambert	Fishing
John Bocklet	Fishing
R. D. Adair	Dancing

Bill McCallister and the Rev. W. H. Tifford have made a verbal agreement. Bill has promised to go to church on Sunday morning providing the minister will go fishing with him some Sunday. The party of the second part will not back out either, declares the party of the first part.

XENIA TO RECEIVE LOOP COURT AWARD

Formal award to Xenia Central High School of a trophy emblematic of the 1931 basketball championship of the Miami Valley League, a custom observed annually since the six-school circuit began to function four years ago, will again be re-enacted when coaches and other officials of the member schools assemble at the Dayton Y. M. C. A. Tuesday night at 6:30 o'clock for their semi-annual dinner meeting.

Spring sports are expected to furnish a lively topic for discussion at the league gathering and dual meets in tennis, golf and track may be arranged.

Coach Walter C. "Pinky" Wilson, Principal F. R. Woodruff and O. B. Bogart, faculty manager of athletics, will represent Central High School at the convocation.

ANTHONY BIDDLE OBTAINS DIVORCE

PARIS, March 10. — Anthony Drexel Biddle, Jr., member of one of the oldest families in the United States, whose marriage was dissolved by a decree of divorce granted at Newburgh-On-Hudson Saturday, was reported engaged today to Mrs. Theodora Schulze.

The reported bride-to-be is the daughter of William Boyce Thompson of New York, the late copper magnate. At present she is believed to be in Paris.

The divorce was arranged secretly. Mrs. Biddle, whose personal wealth has been estimated at $100,000,000, is the daughter of the late Benjamin S. Duke.

Buccaneer Hopes Hit Bad Luck; Play Hughes

CENTRAL MUST MEET STRONGEST FOE IN STATE TOURNAMENT

Draws Cincinnati
Champs; Ross Also Draws Fast Five

Xenia Central High faces the prospect of meeting Hughes High School, scholastic basketball champions of Greater Cincinnati, in the first round of the Southwestern Ohio district tournament at the Dayton fairgrounds coliseum Friday afternoon.

The Xenia-Hughes contest, the second on the Class A program, is scheduled for 4 o'clock.

Possessing an impressive record, Hughes is considered the outstanding team in the Class A division and reigns a pre-tourney favorite to win the district title this week-end.

Ross Twp. High School, Class B champions of Greene County, and runner-up to Enon of Clark County in the sectional tournament at Springfield last week-end, also was unfortunate in the draw and will be required to play Jackson Twp., the prime favorite among the Class B schools, in the first round of the district meet at 8 o'clock Friday night.

Drawings in both the Class A and Class B divisions took place Monday night in the offices of Paul Schenck, city recreation director of Dayton, and the pairings were made under a plan which prevented teams representing the same section from meeting each other in first-round games.

The first game on the Class A program Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock provides a meeting between Dayton Chamblaine and Roger Beason of Cincinnati and the survivor of this contest will clash with the winner of the Xenia-Hughes game in the semi-finals at 2 p. m. Saturday.

In the lower bracket, Sidney, a Miami Valley League team, will oppose Middletown at 7 p. m. Friday, while Springfield is assigned to meet Hamilton Public at 9 p. m. The winners of these two games will meet in the semi-finals at 3 p. m. Saturday.

The program in the Class B series will get under way at 1 o'clock Friday afternoon when West Milton, runner-up to Jackson Twp. in the sectional tourney at Dayton, plays Georgetown. McGuffey, winner of the Middletown sectional and one of the strongest contenders, drew Enon, champions of Clark County and winner of the Springfield sectional, as its first round opponent at 3 p. m. Friday; the winners in this bracket meeting at 1 p. m. Saturday.

In the lower half of the draw, Monroe faces Terrace Park at 5 p. m. Friday and the Ross Twp.-Jackson game, carded for 8 p. m., will be the last on the Class B program Friday. The winners of these two games will fight it out for survival in the semi-finals at 3 p. m. Saturday.

Jackson Twp., which is heavily favored to win the district Class B title, is represented by the same veteran quintet which won its way to the semi-finals of the regional finale a year ago.

The district finals in Class A and Class B, to determine the teams which will represent the Southwestern District in both divisions in the state finals at Columbus a week hence, will take place Saturday night, the B finals at 8 o'clock and the A finals at 9 o'clock.

McPherson, with a series of 506, and D. McCoy, with a series of 500, were the only members of either team to register individual three-game totals of at least 500. Box score:

PLAYGROUND BODY RE-ELECTS SAME OFFICERS AT MEETING

Present officers of the Xenia Playground Association were re-elected to serve another year when the association held its annual reorganization meeting Monday night at The George Dodds and Sons Granite Co., W. Main St.

Officers of the organization, who also constitute the Softball Commission which has jurisdiction over the softball leagues in Xenia each summer are: Walker Gibeau, president; Paul Turnbull, vice-president, and E. E. Boxwell, secretary and treasurer.

The yearly session was attended by members of the softball commission and managers or representatives of the various teams which will compete in the "kitten ball" sport this summer.

Ten teams were formally admitted to membership in the association, including four new entrants which will take the place of Company L, Caddies, Geyer's and Kiwanis-Rotary.

The new teams are the Red Wings Co., All-Stars, Coates Barber Shop and a "kid" team entered by H. G. Patterson, assistant Central High School coach.

The Lang Chevrolet Co., 1930 city champions, The Downtown Country Club, Graham Paints, Critteron, Carroll-Binder Co., and Krippendorff-Dittmann Co., will again be represented.

Representatives of the various teams voted to limit eligibility lists to twelve players, meaning that each team will carry only two utility players on its roster.

Eligibility lists must be submitted to the softball commission ten days in advance of the opening of the season, the third Monday in April, after which the commission will determine which six teams will compete in the National League, and which four clubs in the American League.

Decision was also reached to again sell membership tickets, a plan initiated last year in order to help finance the sport this summer.

When the A's got underway for the first full practice session they discovered several truck loads of movie equipment trained on them.

It wasn't like that in the old days when Mack first broke into the manager business more than thirty years ago and it wasn't like that ten years ago when the A's were tailenders, scared to death someone would invent ninth place for them to fall into.

The aging Mister Mack is on the job every day and doesn't shed the strain of last season's battle for the flag.

One of the first rookies to attract the trained Mackian eye this training season is Hank McDonnell, a six-foot four-inch pitching machine. In his first time out on the mound Hank bore down on the ball in a manner that caused Connie's eye to twinkle. Hank's been training for weeks at home.

Connie is still the cautious Connie he was before training season opened and refuses to discuss his team's possibilities.

With the exception of the finals, March 24, two games will be played each evening the classic is in progress, the first contest at 8 p. m. and the second at 9 p. m.

Springfield Dentons, the defending champion, will be seen in action in the first tourney game at 8 p. m. Tuesday, meeting the Newark Heiseys, while in the second game of the evening Bliss Business College will face the Delaware Jamison Electricians.

The Union Loan team, which will provide the opposition for the Lang Falcons in their opening tilt, Lang Falcons is one of the strongest aggregations entered in the competition, being composed of such stars as Bob Taylor, Jess Stewart, Tony Pauley, Dave Stewart, Frank Glassman, Harold Ervin, Harold Welmer and Bill Hunt.

The Falcon lineup will be strengthened by the addition of Roy James and Pat McCann, a Springfield luminary.

The journey winner will be awarded 75 per cent of the total entry fees ($120). $90, while the remaining 25 per cent, $30 will go to the runnerup. The winner will also receive a year's possession of the Ohio State Journal trophy and the runnerup will own the new Aquinas trophy for a year. Both awards must be won three times to be retained permanently.

Farm Notes

BROODING CHICKS ON WIRE FLOORS IS SANITARY MEASURE

The new practice of brooding chicks on wire floors is being resorted to by a considerable number of poultry raisers in their defense against disease and parasites. Tests by D. C. Kennard, in charge of poultry investigations at the Ohio Experiment Station, indicate that wire floors can be made an effective means for control of sanitary conditions to prevent or control coccidiosis and to prevent range paralysis. At the same time it was found that chicks on wire floors were more subject to the bites of feather picking and cannibalism. On this account it is suggested that each poultry raiser first try out the procedure on a small scale.

In order to provide greater comfort and to protect against cold or draft from beneath the screen, during the chicks' first two weeks a single or double thickness of burlap sacks should be spread over the wire around the brooder where the chicks settle down for the night.

The floor beneath the screen need be cleaned only once each month, but for best results it is necessary to clean and disinfect the screen thoroughly twice each week, especially the top edges of supports where droppings may lodge.

Details relative to the construction of wire floors may be obtained by writing the Experiment Station.

National Farm Outlook

By ARTHUR H. JENKINS
Written for Central Press
Congress closed up and went home without taking any action on any proposal to regulate further the grain exchanges.

Several such bills were introduced during the session, one or two of them framed with moderation and intelligence. But Congress evidently felt it had enough troubles, what with unemployment in the cities, drought relief in the southwest, the soldiers' loan legislation, and so on and so forth.

Farm interests used to agitate violently for the abolition of the grain markets. I cannot remember a time when orators were not denouncing gambling in the wheat pit, and demanding that only sales of actual grain, by someone who owned it, should be permitted. That extreme position has been modified considerably in the last fifteen years, as the advantages of the hedging system, and the value of having an open auction market available at all times, came to be better understood.

But the idea that "short selling" of grain was somehow injurious to grain growers has persisted. And nearly everybody has agreed that some supervision of the great future contract markets is necessary to guard against abuses.

The grain exchanges have in fact been under close government observation since the Grain Futures act was passed in 1923. And there has hardly been a day since when grain traders have not denounced the law, and declared that it works out to the detriment of farming.

There can be two opinions about that, and there are. There can be two opinions as to the wickedness of "short selling," since for every seller, hoping to make a profit as grain goes down, there must be a buyer, hoping to make a profit in the other direction.

The fact remains, that for several years after the regulatory law was in force, there was no important decrease in trading on the Chicago and other grain exchanges. Whether regulation was liked or disliked, trading went on in enormous volume.

But the passage of the Agricultural Marketing act in 1929, and the increasing operations of the farm co-operatives and the Grain Stabilization corporation have actually made a difference.

The change was seen when transactions in wheat at Chicago fell behind those in corn. A famous grain speculator announced that he was moving to Winnipeg, where a free grain market remained open. It is seen again when an exchange in New York announces that it is going to deal in wheat imported into the United States in bond, for export later, claiming that this is now the only North American wheat for which a free public market exists.

Perhaps these various happenings give the grain co-operatives and the Canadian wheat pool at Winnipeg more credit for influence on prices than they really deserve.

But it is plain that if grain traders want a market that will fluctuate and keep on fluctuating, free from government oversight and agricultural influence, they can always find one somewhere.

N. Y. STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, March 10.—A burst of new speculative buying of the public utility stocks in the first hour today carried a dozen or more of the leaders to new high levels for the year. Demand for the utilities was based on the reported formation of a giant holding company to bring together Consolidated Gas, United Corporation and their affiliated companies, including Niagara Hudson Power and American Superpower into the most powerful utility combination the world has ever seen.

DAYTON, O., March 10.—After changing his plea of not guilty to guilty, Thomas B. McCauley, 28, of Omaha, Neb., today faced an indeterminate term in Mansfield reformatory for the robbery of the South Park Savings Bank here.

McCauley appeared unexpectedly before Judge William W. White late yesterday. He had been held here under $25,000 bond. County Prosecutor Crawford agreed to the reformatory sentence inasmuch as McCauley had never been convicted previously of a penitentiary offense.

EX-POLICEMAN IS SOUGHT IN MURDER

CLEVELAND, Mr. 10.—Apprehension of Morris Lieberman, 35, former Cleveland policeman, who is wanted for questioning in connection with the William E. Potter murder investigation, was expected within twenty-four hours by police officials of Houston, Texas, Cleveland detectives were advised today.

Believed to be the man who sold the gun used in the slaying of Potter to "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin, now awaiting trial on charges of first degree murder, Lieberman has been sought by police of Houston and New Orleans since Sunday when Cleveland police requested that he be located.

Reports from the two southern cities revealed that the hunted man had not appeared at his customary haunts in the past few days. Lieberman is a salesman for a Cincinnati fur concern according to police.

A radio typewriter which transmits written messages through the ether has been perfected by Glenn W. Watson of Detroit. The operator merely depresses the keys, as in ordinary typewriting, and each letter is sent out into the ether as an impulse which is picked up by the receiver set, which is synchronized to the sending machine and is in turn re-typed by the receiving typewriter. Photo shows Watson, right, demonstrating his device to Fred Wardell, his backer.

Days of the old water holes are recalled at Moxahala, O., in southern Perry county, as people for miles distant in the drought area, come to a spring, there, for water. Despite the drought the spring's flow has been undiminished. As many as 15 automobiles sometimes are parked at the spring's outlet waiting to fill their containers.

NATIONS COMPARED TO FOUR HORSEMEN IN ADDRESS MONDAY

"Certain things in the present situation of the nations of the earth come nearer to being an application of the vision of the four horsemen of the Apocalypse than anything the world has ever seen," Prof. H. A. Miller of the department of sociology of the Ohio State University told Antioch College students at what proved to be one of the most interesting assembly lectures of the year, Monday.

"To illustrate my meaning, I have divided the world into four parts: first, the western civilization—embracing America and all of Europe except Russia—which seems to me like the rider on the white horse, going forth with a sword to conquer; second, Russia, which is the red horseman, chasing peace from the earth; third, China, the black horseman carrying a balance in his hand, a balance which China literally does carry, as I shall show; and fourth, India, the pale horseman, bringing death, according to the Revelation. The last comparison is not yet, at least, quite so literal."

Professor Miller, who is a recognized authority on race relations and race conditions, and who has spent much time in travel among the different nations of the earth, proceeded to compare the four civilizations showing how that of the west which has dominated the world for the past 150 years is beginning now to lose its grip. "It has made very definite contributions," he went on, "first in placing its emphasis on initiative, and second on the value and preservation of the individual. Out of this individualism came the desire to exploit natural resources and thus get as much profit as possible for the individual or for groups also highly individualistic. But western civilization has run its course. We have too many people for our system of production. We have no definite philosophy; even our religion was imported from the east, and our practice is exactly the opposite of what our religion teaches."

"In the last decade, from 1920 to 1930, a very curious thing has happened—there have been three men each of whom has had more power and larger followings than any other men that ever lived. Two of them are dead, and the one who is still living has probably the largest following of any one who has ever lived. They are Lenin in Russia, Sun Yat Sen in China, and Gandhi in India. Each is typically representative of the culture from which he comes, and each was stimulated to the things he has contributed to the world by the ideas he found in the west."

FORMER XENIAN STUDENT WILL CONDUCT CHURCH SERVICES HERE

Dr. William P. White, Los Angeles, will return to the place where he pursued his theological studies years ago when he comes here to begin a series of conferences at the First Reformed Church, Detroit and Church Sts., Sunday, it is announced by the Rev. W. W. Foust, pastor.

Dr. White was a student at the old Xenia Theological Seminary when it was located in Xenia years ago and when its faculty included such brilliant theologians as Dr. Moorehead, Dr. W. W. After two years in this work he was called to the presidency of the Bible Institute at Los Angeles, where he now serves. Dr. White will begin his series here at the morning services at the Reformed Church Sunday and on that night will deliver the sermon at union services which will be held at that church. He is scheduled to address the Greene County Ministerial Association at its meeting Monday morning, March 16.

During the week he will conduct both afternoon and evening services, his afternoon program being a series on Paul's letter to the church at Philippi. The time of the afternoon meetings will be announced later but the evening services will start at 7:30 o'clock.

A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY + by MILES BURTON

CHAPTER 38

Armed with Sir Edric's card, Dick presented himself on the following morning to the sergeant in charge of the rifle premises. His first action was to inspect the store-room in the basement, from which the remaining safes had been removed to a place of greater security. The steel wall had been cut through as with a knife, leaving a yawning gap through which the yellow clay of the excavations could be seen. He walked through into this, and made his way to the surface of the yard by means of a ladder which had been lowered into the pit.

It was the yard which particularly interested him. Against the back wall of Seccombe and Armistead's premises a corrugated iron shelter had been erected, supported by pillars and girders much heavier than was necessary merely to support the roof. The real use of these girders was apparent, for the middle one was immediately over the pit, and had evidently been used for the purpose of attaching a hoisting tackle. Dick, standing under the shelter, noticed that it was so contrived that it screened the pit from the observation of all the windows looking over the yard.

The pit itself had been covered with heavy planks, of the type usually employed in inspection pits, for the shape of the yard and the position of the gateway made it necessary to run the wheels of the lorry over the pit in order to maneuver it under the shelter. These planks had been removed, and piled in a heap. Dick glanced at them, but they were covered with oil and grease, which rendered them useless for his purpose.

However, the yard was paved with rough cobblestones, and looked a little more promising. Beginning with the part of it immediately within the gateway, he proceeded to get on to his hands and knees, and to peer about through his lens among the interstices between the stones. The constable stationed in the yard watched him for some seconds with ill-concealed amusement. He then stroked off towards the pit, and disappeared. A few seconds later Dick, turning around, became aware of a row of grinning faces regarding him over the edge.

"Famous detective in characteristic attitude," he muttered. "Well, I don't care, let them laugh. I must say, though, I'm rather glad that Polard isn't here to see Hullo, what's this?"

He picked up a few grains of dried mud, and laid them in the palm of his hand, examining them intently through his magnifying glass. Having done so, he uttered an exclamation of satisfaction. "Good enough," he exclaimed softly. "That's what I was looking for. Now, the point is, what are we going to do about it?"

The fact that he had found a particle of galena between the stones of the yard added one more link to the chain of evidence that this particular lorry had been the one which had conveyed Brooks' body from the Mendips. If that were the case, then it was highly probable that a very close connection existed between the All-England Insurance Company and the High Mendip Mining Syndicate. He had not mentioned the existence of the latter firm to Sir Edric; he had, indeed said nothing to him of his exploits at the Anchor and Hope, fearing to be overwhelmed by a flood of sarcasm. Should he return to Scotland Yard and reveal his suspicions?

On the whole there seemed very little point in doing so. From his experience of the methods of the Funnies, Dick knew that it was in the last degree improbable that he would have left any traces behind him at the deserted workings. Privately, Dick believed that no more would be heard of the Funnies, at least for some years to come. His theory was that this last coup marked the end of his operations. He and all his gang would probably be embarked on board the motor-boat, which they would scuttle at sea, landing at some secluded spot on the coast in small boats. After all, putting aside their earlier successes, the proceeds of the last three coups would yield a colossal sum, it judiciously realized. Or, more probably, the Funnies would remain in England, unknown and unsuspected, while the gang dispersed.

The abandonment of the lorry seemed to lead color to this theory. It looked like the last act in the carefully-staged drama: the flinging away of properties no longer required. If this were the case, then these audacious robberies would cease, and the menace of the Funnies would be removed, since, even though he himself would remain in England, he could scarcely act without his agents.

The more he considered the matter, the more firmly he became convinced that this was the end which the Funnies had planned. However careful he might be, every fresh attempt added to the danger of his discovery. Now that he had amassed wealth which must run into hundreds of thousands, surely he would be satisfied, and seek his own safety. It was practically certain that there was nothing more to be feared from the Funnies.

"Dash it! Now that the gang's bolted, I'm damned if I don't go and have another look at that old mine," he said to himself.

Dick, having come to this decision, acted upon it without delay. He went straight to Paddington, where he sent a telegram to the landlord of the Anchor and Hope, asking him to meet him at Wells. He then made inquiries about trains, and found that he had just time to catch the 12:30, which would land him at Wells shortly before four.

He had taken the train, not only because it was quicker, but because he had suspicions of Inspector Polard and his ways. It was more than likely that Polard had ordered a watch to be kept on the news in which his car was garaged, and he had no desire to call the attention of Scotland Yard to his movements. Standing under the shelter, he noticed that it was so contrived that it screened the pit from the observation of all the windows looking over the yard.

On the way down, he amused himself by trying to impart substance to the shadow known as the Funnies. Beyond the fact that he had a most creepy and disturbing laugh, he knew nothing of him. That he was a man who regarded crime as an art, there could be no doubt. In all probability, his agents were as ignorant of his real identity as Dick himself. He imagined him as conducting his operations, hidden metaphorically as well as actually, behind a screen. On the surface, he probably lived a blameless life, probably in London. It was quite possible that Dick had met him often enough. He might even be a member of his own club. Now that he came to think of it, there were many people among his wide circle of acquaintances whose sources of income were a bit mysterious.

He passed them in review idly through his mind, until he came to the name of Ibbotson. There he paused, struck with a sudden idea. Ibbotson seemed to possess unbounded wealth, beyond even what might have been expected of a retired money lender. Suppose the money-lending had been merely a preparation for an even more lucrative career. As a money lender he would acquire a store of very valuable knowledge as to the possessions of his clients and their friends. In that capacity he might also have practiced as a fence, thereby getting in touch with the members of the criminal classes.

If Paramount can close a deal for the talkie rights, "Tom Sawyer, Detective," will be made this summer in Hollywood.

Though lesser known than "Tom Sawyer" or "Huckleberry Finn," the Mark Twain sequel is said to provide good picture material. In case it is made, the leading roles will be taken by Jackie Coogan, Milti Green and Jackie Searles with John Cromwell directing.

"Tom Sawyer" has turned out to be one of Paramount's big money pictures of the year and has brought Jackie Coogan back as a star. And also it has turned Hollywood to the task of winning back its most loyal audience, the children of the land.

Aroused to this latter need, all the studios are planning pictures with special appeal to the young fans. After letting Leon Janney go a few months back, Warner Brothers have signed him to a new long-term contract and will feature him in both Tarkington's story, "Penrod and Sam." The talkie will be made by First National under the direction of Robert Milton.

Before production starts, Janney goes on a personal appearance tour in Warner Theaters but a clause in his contract provides he can be returned to the studio on two weeks' notice. He is the child actor who appeared in "Courage."

As soon as he completes "Mme. Julie," Victor Schertzinger plans to take a camera crew to Spain to film atmospheric shots for Radio Pictures' forthcoming special, "Marcheta." One of the objects is to record a sixty-piece guitar orchestra in Madrid. Officials figure that the song "Marcheta" has created ready-made interest in the title. Richard Dix and Irene

President Of National B. P. W. Is Air-Minded

Miss Marion H. McClench

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

A modern business woman would naturally take the most efficient means to get from place to place, so Miss Marion McClench of Ann Arbor, Mich., for the past two years president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, uses the air as a means to shorten her schedule on speaking trips.

Miss McClench might be called an air bug. She was a guest at the first aerial luncheon ever cooked, and never refuses an invitation for a flight. She is said to be the first woman president of a national organization to use this method of getting about the country.

When the annual convention of the federation meets in Richmond,

Va., in July, Miss McClench will take off from Detroit in a plane, and fly to Chicago, where she will board a "president's special" train with an all-woman passenger list.

The National Federation in America expects to send a large delegation to the first international congress of business and professional women's clubs which is scheduled for July 26-29 in Vienna, Austria. Miss McClench will head the delegation.

Through the generosity of Miss McClench and her board the expenses of the first international congress of business and professional women at Geneva, Switzerland, last August, at which the international organization was formed, was borne by the federation of the United States.

CHIEF CORNWELL RESIGNS POST AS COMMANDER OF GUARD UNIT

After being actively identified with the Ohio National Guard for more than twenty-one years, Police Chief O. H. Cornwell has submitted his resignation as captain and commanding officer of Company L, 147th Infantry, O. N. G., effective April 1, in order to devote his entire attention to his duties as head of the Xenia police department.

Cornwell said Tuesday that his resignation has been accepted and that he will be transferred to the Officers' Reserve Corps, an inactive unit of the United States army.

Coincident with announcement of his resignation as commander, came the disclosure Jesse D. Burgert, first lieutenant of Company L and second in command, has been authorized to take acting charge of the Xenia guard unit April 1.

Lieut. Burgert, who received his commission December 1, 1928 and has been associated with the National Guard for more than six years, will be required to pass a special examination, however, before he is eligible for promotion to the rank of captain and permanent appointment as commander of the local company.

The retiring commander joined the local unit January 16, 1926 as a second lieutenant from Company D, 166th Infantry, with which he was affiliated at his former home in Marion, O. He was made a first lieutenant July 15, 1926 and in that capacity took command of Company L here December 26, 1926, being elevated to his present rank of captain February 2, 1927.

He leaves behind him a record of more than twenty-one years of active service in the National Guard and in addition he also saw considerable service with the famous Rainbow Division overseas during the late war.

Cornwell, in announcing his action in severing connection with the National Guard, pointed out he has now served in the dual capacity of police chief and commander of Company L for nearly a year and that the conflicting duties have become too arduous.

During the nearly five years he has been associated with Company L, Cornwell was able to stimulate greater interest in the Xenia unit, and was one of the original leaders in the movement which culminated in the erection last fall of the new $50,000 state armory in the Dodds Addition as a home for the local militia.
